

2009 Duke Spirituality & Health Research Class (July)

Sherry S. Abel, R.N., B.S.N., Ph.D. student. I graduated from Cuyahoga Community College in 1979 with an Associate Degree in Nursing. In 1998 I graduated from Northeastern University with a BSN-MS. I am a member of Sigma Theta Tau. I presently work as an Assistant Professor at South University in the Nursing Department. My responsibilities include teaching Fundamentals of Nursing and Adult 1. In addition I work in the nursing lab. I occasionally work with the students in the clinical setting. I enrolled into the doctoral program at Argosy University in June of 2007. I am on track to complete my course work in December 2009. At that point my research proposal will be on Spirituality of the Nurse. Through years of observation of the nurse's continual exposure to the emotional and physical pain of the patient and family members, I believe nurses do themselves suffer emotional trauma. Unfortunately nursing schools do not include a course that is specially developed to teach students how to cope with patients in crisis or how to protect themselves. My proposed research will look at students before and after taking a 10 week course on spirituality. E-mail: edsherry1@aol.com.

Mara C. Adams, PhD. Dr. Adams earned her B.A. and Master of Pastoral Studies from St. Ambrose University, Davenport, Iowa; her Ph.D. in Religious Studies from the University of Iowa. Her dissertation explored the manner in which Vincent de Paul understood the intersection of spiritual and physical health in 17th-century France. From 2006-2008, she taught nurses as part of the Health Resources and Services Administration Grant (HRSA) that was awarded to St. Ambrose University in partnership with Genesis Medical Center. Currently an associate professor of Theology of St. Ambrose, her research interests include spirituality and mental health, clinical uses of forgiveness, and spirituality and suffering. E-mail: AdamsMaraC@sau.edu.

Margie Atkinson, DMin, BCC. Dr. Atkinson is Director of Pastoral Care for Morton Plant Mease Health Care in Clearwater, Florida. Margie holds the D. Min. degree in Pastoral Theology from Brite Divinity at Texas Christian University and M. Div. degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Margie has been a health care chaplain for fifteen years. She is a Board Certified Chaplain with the APC. She is Chair of the Ethics Committee for MPMHC and director of the health system's Faith Community Nursing Program. Research interests include measuring the impact of professional chaplains in patient satisfaction data, patient-centered approach to spiritual assessment and the impact of spirituality and religious tradition in complicated bioethical issues. E-mail: Margie.Atkinson@baycare.org.

Beverly J. R. Aurand, MDiv, MEd, MSW, PhD, LMSW has been an Associate Professor of Social Work at Virginia Union University in Richmond since August of 2007. She is a Lutheran pastor and served as a parish pastor in Pittsburgh, PA and campus pastor at the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, and at Newberry College in Newberry, South Carolina. She worked for ten years as a psychotherapist at the Pittsburgh Pastoral Institute in Pittsburgh and for five years as a program associate in the Continuing Education Department at the University of Pittsburgh's School of Social Work. E-mail: bjaurand@gmail.com.

Gail Beddingfield. Gail is Executive Director, Global L&D, Quintiles Transnational, 4709 Creekstone Drive, Durham, NC 27703. E-mail: gail.beddingfield@quintiles.com.

J. Wim Brandsma, RPT, PhD. Physical therapist. The Intrinsic Minus Hand: pathokinesiology, reconstruction and rehabilitation. Working experience in Netherlands, Norway, Uganda, India, Nepal, USA and Ethiopia. Training and evaluation of programs in many more countries. Current position: consultant rehabilitation All Africa Leprosy, TB and Rehabilitation Training Centre, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, seconded by The Leprosy Mission International. Primary areas of work (incl. research): leprosy and hand reconstruction and rehabilitation. Research future: based on the framework of the International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health (ICF-WHO, 2001): personal and environmental factors. How do they influence health/ wellbeing? Currently the ICF does not even mention religiosity / spirituality as a personal factor that could be considered a 'facilitator' ('barrier'), in ICF terminology, in pathogenesis or salutogenesis. E-mail: jwbrandsma@gmail.com.

Amy M. Burdette, Ph.D. Dr. Burdette received her Ph.D. from the Department of Sociology at the University of Texas at Austin in 2007. She is currently an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Mississippi State University. Her research investigates connections between religious involvement, neighborhood context, family and health across the life course. Dr. Burdette's work has appeared in outlets such as Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion, Social Science and Medicine, Journal of Family Issues, and Sociology of Religion. E-mail: ABurdette@soc.msstate.edu.

Jesus Cruz-Correa, M.D., F.A.C.O.G., M.Div. I was borne in a poor neighborhood of San Juan, Puerto Rico, 61 years ago. I complete a Bachelor Degree in Business Administration with a major in accounting in the University of Puerto Rico in 1969. I completed my medical training in Murcia, Spain and the Dominican Republic. I serve as Associate Professor of Ob-Gyn in Ponce Medical School in Ponce, Puerto Rico, practicing gynecology in adult and youth female penitentiaries. I am also a chaplain of the State Police of Puerto Rico and chaplain in 700 men penitentiary. Interested in developing a Spirituality and Health Curricula in Ponce School of Medicine, if succeed take this model to the others schools of medicine in my country. Member of the Association of Professional Chaplains and recently complete my first Unit of Clinical Pastoral Education. E-mail: cruzcorrea@gmail.com.

Rev. Mary Katherine Dombek, doctoral graduate student. Mary Katherine is working on her Ph.D in Physical Education Pedagogy and Gerontology Certificate at the University of South Carolina. She completed ministerial school at Unity Institute where she participated in 2 prayer studies at Silent Unity as a telephone prayer associate. Her BA in Psychology and MA's, in Physical Education and Outdoor Education were completed at the University of Akron. During her 4 years of ministry in a Unity church in Florida, she noticed how many of her congregants planned their week around doctor visits. This created an interest in the connections between spirituality, physical activity and health. E-mail: marykatherine3@mac.com.

Pam Driedger, MDiv. Pam has a BA in politics from Princeton University and an MDiv from Yale University. She is currently serving as the Director of Spiritual Care at Eden Mental Health Centre in Winkler, Manitoba, Canada. Pam's research interests centre on evaluating the impact of various spiritual supports and/or spiritual care approaches on short term and long term mental health recovery. She is examining whether there are spiritual care services that ought to be considered “essential services” within mental health because of their impact on health outcomes. E-mail: pdriedger@edenhealth.mb.ca.

Christina Fernandez DDiv, JD, BCC. Christina is the Vice President for Mission Integration and Spiritual Care Services for Catholic Healthcare West, a healthcare system with facilities in Arizona, California and Nevada. Christina is responsible for leadership development quality improvement and implementation of strategic goals and initiatives for mission and spiritual care services in 41 hospitals. Christina has degrees from Stanford University, Stanford Law School and Sophia Divinity School. A married mother of four adult daughters, ordained priest, board certified chaplain and licensed attorney, Christina has provided leadership in spiritual care and ethics services for the past 14 years. E-mail: Christina.Fernandez@CHW.edu.

Rabbi Dayle A. Friedman, MSW, MAJCS, BCC. Rabbi Friedman is a pioneer in the development of a Jewish spiritual vision for later life. She is the founder and director of Hiddur: The Center for Aging and Judaism of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, which works to foster engaged, spiritually vibrant aging through professional education, scholarship and spiritual resources. Her publications include Jewish Visions for Aging: A Professional Guide for Fostering Wholeness and Jewish Pastoral Care: A Practical Handbook from Traditional and Contemporary Sources, which she edited. She was included in the Forward 50, The Forward's list of influential American Jewish leaders. E-mail: dayle@ravdalia.net.

Masoud Ghaffari, PhD, RN, MT. Dr. Ghaffari is an Associate Professor in the College of Nursing at East Tennessee State University. His areas of specialization are educational psychology (learning & development), health education and community health, nursing management and leadership, medical technology, and medicine. His research interests include understanding of ontology and epistemology of human intelligence, transpersonal phenomenology, self-organizing theory, system theory, and constructivist learning theory. In addition, he has interest in school reform and holistic education. A holistic paradigm of human intelligence, Trinity Paradigm of Intelligence (TPI), emerged from his dissertation. He has taught a course entitled “Mind-Body-spirit Healing” for the past 4 years. E-mail: GHAFFARI@mail.etsu.edu.

Aisha Hamdan, Ph.D. Dr. Aisha Hamdan is an Assistant Professor of Behavioral Sciences in the College of Medicine at the University of Sharjah, United Arab Emirates. She earned an M. A. in Clinical Psychology from Minnesota State University and a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from West Virginia University. She has been a Muslim for over 20 years and received a Bachelor’s Degree in Islamic Studies from the American Open University. Her current research interests include women’s mental health issues, spirituality and mental health in Muslim populations, and the development of spirituality in children. E-mail: ahamdan@sharjah.ac.ae.

Anita P. Haze, BSN, ANP, DDiv. I am currently attending Central Michigan University Doctor of Health Administration program. I have a Bachelors of Science in Nursing from Downstate Medical Center, 1988. I have a Masters of Science with a concentration as an Adult Nurse Practitioner from Long Island University, 1998. I have a Doctor of Divinity. I have 21 years of experience in various Healthcare positions. I currently work for the Visiting Nurse Service of New York as a Regional Intake Manager of the Long Term Care Program/ AIDS Lombardi Program. I am the proud mother of two children and a grandmother to Aiden James Anthony Johnson. I am a Senior Elder at The Life Chapel, a nondenominational Church in Jamaica, Queens. I am Director of Christian Education. My relationship with the Lord, leads to me to do my dissertation on Spirituality and its effects on Health Outcomes in the HIV/AIDS population. E-mail: aphapcbjrc@aol.com.

Terrence D. Hill, Ph.D. Terrence is an assistant professor of sociology at the University of Miami. He received his PhD in sociology at the University of Texas at Austin in 2006. His research focuses on the social distribution of health and health-relevant behaviors. He is especially interested in the effects of religious involvement, neighborhood conditions, socioeconomic status, and social relationships. E-mail: tdh@miami.edu.

James A. Houck, Ph.D., L.P.C. is a graduate of Loyola College's Pastoral Counseling program. He currently is an Assistant Professor and Clinical Coordinator for the Pastoral Counseling program at Neumann College in Aston, PA. He is also a Licensed Professional Counselor in Pennsylvania and an ordained pastor with the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church. Professional memberships include the American Counseling Association, Association for the Spiritual, Ethical, Religious, Values in Counseling, and the International Association for Near-Death Studies. Publications include the journals of HIV/AIDS and Social Services, the Association of Franciscan Colleges and Universities, and Near-Death Studies. E-mail: houckj@neumann.edu.

Debbie Huckaby, RN, BBA, MBA. Debbie is a Registered Nurse with thirty-four years of acute healthcare experience. Debbie received an ADN, a BBA and a MBA. In response to a call to the ministry, Debbie received a Masters in Theology from Wheaton College in 2007 and will begin Seminary at Candler School of Theology Emory University this fall. Debbie is a Parish Nurse/Parish Nurse Coordinator and in 2008 founded the Parish Nurse Resource Center, Inc. (PNRC) a non-profit corporation dedicated to promoting physical, mental, and spiritual health and healing through the development and support of Parish Nurses and Health and Wellness Ministries. E-mail: debbiehuckaby@charter.net.

Allison Keuning, Ph.D., L.P. Dr. Keuning is a graduate of Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, California, where she received a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology and an M.A. in Theology. She also completed one year of postdoctoral fellowship at UCLA in HIV clinical research in 2004. Dr. Keuning is currently an assistant professor of psychology at Northwestern College in St. Paul, Minnesota, as well as a consulting neuropsychologist on an acute rehabilitation unit in Minneapolis. In her spare time, Dr. Keuning enjoys Bikram Yoga. Research interests are "under constructions" but include investigating the neuropsychological correlates of wisdom and spirituality in the elderly. E-mail: arkeuning@nwc.edu.

Suk-Sun Kim, RN, Ph.D. Suk-Sun is a post doctoral fellow at the Duke Center for Spirituality, Theology, and Health. She did her undergraduate work at the School of Nursing, Ewha Women's University in Korean and her doctoral work at the College of Nursing, University of Arizona. Her major research interests included: family religion/spirituality and health; meaning and expressions of family spirituality; the health effects of family spirituality; family support and coping of elders' family caregiving in the context of Korean family culture. She is currently conducting research to explore the meaning of family spirituality, the health effects of family spirituality and test and revise Kim's (2006) Family Spiritual Interdependence Theory in family relationships of immigrant Korean American elders in NC. She also has extensive experience in research analysis, particularly with dyad analysis using actor-partner-interdependence model. E-mail: suksunkim@gmail.com.

Victoria Kumorowski, BCC, DMin student. Vickie serves as the Director of Spiritual Care at the Genesis Healthcare System in Zanesville, Ohio. While representing the Ethics Committee, I also serve as the bioethics mediator for the entire system. Before becoming an ordained minister and a board certified chaplain, I practiced law in Kansas for twenty-four years, including four years as a state trial court judge. Since 1992, I have researched the major legal, medical, ethical, and spiritual issues raised by advances in our genetic technology. I am currently working on my thesis for a Doctorate in Ministry in Formational Counseling through Ashland Theological Seminary. E-mail: VKumorowski@genesishcs.org.

Andy Lampkin, Ph.D. Andy currently teaches theology and bioethics at Loma Linda University. In 2000, he earned a Doctoral degree from the graduate school at Vanderbilt University in the program, Religion, Ethics, and Society. He has focused much of his academic career on the intersections of Christian faith, health care, public health, and social justice. Dr. Lampkin has received funding from the NIH to better understand the Barriers to Health Research Among African American Seventh-day Adventists. Additionally, he has served as an advisor and consultant to Adventist health Study II, a nationwide longitudinal study. Presently, he is a co-investigator of the nationwide Adventist Religion and Health Study, exploring the relationship between religion and health outcomes. He is also an associate scholar at the Center for Christian Bioethics at Loma Linda University. E-mail: alampkin@llu.edu.

Samah Mohamed Mahmoud. Samah is a fulltime PhD research student at Kings College, London. She comes from Abu Dhabi that is the capital of United Arab Emirates where she was working as Nursing Director, Sheikh Khalifah Medical City. She got her MSc Nursing Studies from Cardiff University, UK. The main aim of her research study is to explore the client's illness' experiences and the influences of spirituality on their health well-being, and to evaluate the impact of nurses' regarding the possible effects or the mechanisms that involved client's spiritual well-being and the possibility for improving clients' health outcome and their views regarding delivering spiritual care. E-mail: samah.mahmoud@kcl.ac.uk.

Kay Mantipty-Clark, GNP-BC. Kay has been in nursing for 30 years. She has a career long interest in elders. Kay holds a BSN and a MSN from the University of Virginia and a post – Masters Certificate as a GNP from UNC-Greensboro. She is a student at Duke in the DNP Program. She works for Mission Hospital in Asheville in the Community Health Enhancement Department. She runs the outpatient Elder Clinic, a service that focuses on high risk, frail and vulnerable elders. She teaches in the hospital's Geriatric Resource Nurse program and in the community on a variety of aging topics. Her current interests focus on the oldest old, “gerotranscendence”, relevance of relationship based education and work design to geriatric patient care and to the provision of spiritual care, especially to the oldest-old. E-mail: Kay.Clark@msj.org.

Kristi Mizelle, M.D. Kristi's love for God and science translated into the callings of ministry and medicine. While obtaining her undergraduate degree at Spelman College, Kristi completed an exchange program in the United Kingdom and became fascinated with public health. Therefore, she completed an internship with the Surgeon General, David Satcher, and completed a Master of Public Health degree at Johns Hopkins University. Subsequently, Kristi completed medical school at the University of Virginia, internal medicine residency at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. She is currently a rheumatology fellow at The Johns Hopkins Hospital. Kristi's future includes an academic career researching spirituality and medicine. E-mail: Kmizell1@jhmi.edu.

Vicky Robinson, R.N., M.Sc. Vicky is a Consultant Nurse in Palliative and End of Life Care, Guy's and St. Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust in London. She has worked in palliative care since 1988. Vicky has clinical responsibilities at GSTT in the hospital and community, contributing to and leading nursing developments. Vicky is particularly driven by the unique position held by nurses in end of life care, multidisciplinary and multi-agency teamwork, and spiritual care. Her MSc dissertation reviewed the literature on how spiritual care is managed at the end of life in the UK. She is a member of the National Council for Palliative Care Ethics Committee and consultant editor of the End of Life Care journal, and has written and spoken on assisted suicide and euthanasia to the House of Lords and in the media. E-mail: Vicky.Robinson@gstt.nhs.uk.

Tory Seif, Ph.D. Dr. Seif completed his undergraduate degree at Western Michigan University in 1999, and subsequently earned his MA and Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from The University of Mississippi. Following an internship at Pine Rest Christian Mental Health Services (PRCMHS), which focused on the integration of spirituality and psychology, he took positions with PRCMHS providing psychological assessments and psychotherapy for children, adolescents, and adults. Dr. Seif has been with PRCMHS since 2005 and currently serves as a full-time outpatient therapist. His research interests center on the integration of spirituality and psychotherapy, faith-based marital treatment, and psychoeducational/preventative protocols for victims of stalking. E-mail: Tory.Seif@PineRest.org.

Sr. Mary Clare Smith. Sr. Mary Clare is a counseling psychology doctoral student writing a dissertation on cognitive and spiritual development (Cleveland State University). She is a member of APA Division 36 (Psychology of Religion), an art therapist counselor (Ursuline College), and has masters' degrees in religious education (University of St. Thomas) and history (John Carroll University). She has taught college (religious studies, history, and art) and served as a parish director of religious education. A Sister of Notre Dame, her research interest is integrating spirituality/religion with psychology. E-mail: csmith@ndec.org.

Makoto Uchiyama. I am Japanese by citizenship, but was born in Bangkok, Thailand, and grew up in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia until high school. I came to Portland, Oregon, for my undergraduate degree and majored in biochemistry. While I was in college I got interested in medicine and decided to pursue my path to become a physician through A.T. Still University (an osteopathic medical school) in Kirksville, Missouri, where I am a medical student. I was drawn to the osteopathic medical institution because of its emphasis on “mind, body, and spirit” and how they are connected in forming a person’s health. I hope to be in a part of the workshop to strengthen my understanding of how spirituality can influence a person’s wellbeing. E-mail: muchiyoama@atsu.edu.

Sarah VanHooser, PhD. Dr. VanHooser is a Post Doctoral Fellow at the Center for Spirituality, Theology and Health at Duke University. She completed her doctoral training in Community, Research & Action at Vanderbilt University, where she also received a Masters in Community Development. Sarah’s research interests include addiction and mental illness, especially among women, and the (potential) role of communities in providing a context for healing. Sarah has conducted research with communities in Ecuador, Argentina, and the United States. Her most recent project was an ethnography of a two-year residential recovery community for women with histories of abuse, addiction, and prostitution. Email: sarah.e.vanhooser@Vanderbilt.Edu.

Reverend John Watts. Reverend Watts is a chaplain at Guys and St Thomas Hospital, working with kidney patients. His special interest is spiritual care in chronic illness. He is undertaking a Ph D thesis at King College London, Centre for Biomedicine and Society entitled Narrative and spirituality biographical and spiritual disruption in renal patients. John had a previous career as an architect before retraining and becoming a chaplain in 2001. He is married with 3 children and 2 grandchildren. E-mail: John.Watts@gstt.nhs.uk.

Mary H. Wilson, MSN, RN. Currently, I am a doctoral student attending East Carolina University College of Nursing in Greenville, North Carolina. My clinical nursing experience includes many years of both acute and outpatient care of adults with cardiovascular disease; including heart failure, cardiac surgery, coronary artery disease, and cardiac arrhythmias. I have a primary research interest in the relationship of spirituality and quality of life in patients living with heart failure in rural southeastern North Carolina. Additionally, I would like to examine the impact of culture and spirituality on the health of African American women living with the challenges of cardiovascular disease. E-mail: wilsonm@ecu.edu.

Beverly Yahnke, PhD. Dr. Yahnke is a clinical psychologist and Executive Director of DOXOLOGY, a non-profit organization that provides intensive training for clergy. DOXOLOGY’s interdisciplinary curriculum equips pastors to enhance the counsel and care they provide for parishioners while attending to their own spiritual and emotional well-being, as well. (Learn more at www.DOXOLOGY.us.) DOXOLOGY is providing a learning experience characterized by clergy as “transformational,” “ministry saving” and “the best post-graduate experience I’ve ever attended.” The Duke program is essential to translate one year of anecdotal successes into metrics documenting DOXOLOGY’s powerful spiritual and emotional benefits for clergy. E-mail: yahnke@wi.rr.com.

James D. Yoder, Jr., MDiv, PhD student. Jim is a board certified chaplain with the Association of Professional Chaplains. Holding an MDiv from Lancaster Theological Seminary, Lancaster, PA, Jim completed a two-year residency in Clinical Pastoral Education at Lehigh Valley Hospital, Allentown, and subsequently was employed by ManorCare Health Services in South-central PA and later at DuBois Regional Medical Center, DuBois, PA. He currently serves as the night chaplain at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Greenville, NC. In addition, Jim is a part-time PhD student at East Carolina University, Greenville, in the Medical Family Therapy Program. The realm of research is a new and exciting world for him. E-mail: jdy4apc.stuff@suddenlink.net.