

2015 Duke Spirituality & Health Research Class

Doaa Almostadi, RN, Ph.D. candidate. Doaa is in a Ph.D. program in nursing at the University of South Florida, Tampa. Her dissertation topic is the relationship between death distress and overall wellbeing and beneficial health outcomes which may be influenced by oncology patients who practice religiosity or spirituality in their daily lives. She will be comparing the illness-related outcomes influenced by religious beliefs and practices of Muslim patients in Saudi Arabia with Christian patients in the United States. E-mail: dalmosta@health.usf.edu.

Marilyn Aref, BA. Marilyn recently completed and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology from Saint Leo University in Florida on October 2014. I feel honored to have received this degree with the highest distinction of summa cum laude. Much of the classes I selected touched on areas of family psychology, health, and religion. More than anything, the knowledge gave me an insight into the diversity of mankind and the hierarchy of social need. This desire formed the very foundation of my belief that it is now the right time to gain further knowledge and learn about how religion, spirituality, and health are intertwined. E-mail: maref@arefcointernational.com.

Servin Assari, M.D., MPH. Shervin Assari MD/MPH is a research faculty at Department of Psychiatry, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. As a health disparity researcher, he uses advanced statistical techniques to understand how race, ethnicity, gender, and place moderate the additive and multiplicative effects of protective (i.e. religiosity) and risk factors on depression and cardiovascular disease. Assari has authored more than 100 manuscripts in PubMed and is the Associate Editor of Frontiers in Psychiatry. He sits on the Board of Directors of American College of Epidemiology (ACE) and American Academy of Health Behaviors (AAHB) where he chairs the Associate Members and Membership committees, respectively. E-mail: assari@umich.edu.

Lisa L. Boss, Ph.D., RN. I received a Bachelor's of Science in Nursing in 1997 from The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston. In 2004, I received a Master's of Science in Nursing as an Adult Clinical Nurse Specialist; in 2006 I received a post-master's certificate in Nursing Leadership; in 2013 I received a PhD in Nursing from The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. I am currently an Assistant Professor at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. As a clinician in the Texas Medical Center, I have gained extensive experience working with the rapidly aging population for 15 years. My primary goal is to investigate factors associated with better cognitive health outcomes so that I can develop effective interventions for improving quality of life for disadvantaged elderly individuals. E-mail: Lisa.Boss@uth.tmc.edu.

Jeffrey L. Boss. Email: boss001@gannon.edu.

Nathan A. Boucher, PA-C, MS, MPA, CPHQ, DrPH. Nathan will be a Post-doctoral fellow at VAMC/GRECC and a Senior Fellow at the Duke Center for the Study of Aging. He will be awarded a Doctor of Public Health from SUNY-Downstate, School of Public Health in August. He has training in both quantitative and qualitative research. Nathan's dissertation examined how Hispanic cultural characteristics influence attitudes/intentions towards end-of-life decision among 51 older Dominicans and Puerto Ricans in E. Harlem. Employing mixed methods, Nathan would like to help characterize the area's older African-American VA consumers' opinions regarding religious/spiritual needs and how the VA is meeting them. E-mail: nateboucher@yahoo.com.

Curtis Climer, M.D., M.S. I am a primary care general internist who has worked in rural settings for most of my career: 5 years with the US Public Health Service, 21 years in private practice, and now 3 years of corporate private practice. I have backgrounds in biology and mathematics as an undergraduate, have a Masters degree in Counseling, Psychology, and General Science bench research. My current interests are in what I call Spiritual Public Health. Also, we are in the pilot phase of developing a mic'd room with external scribe as a research project in rural practice. I have a special interest in Jungian psychology. E-mail: curtisclimer@gmail.com.

Mary Lynn Dell, M.D., MTS, ThM, DMin. Dr. Dell is a bivocational academic psychiatrist and clergywoman in the Episcopal Church USA. She serves as Director of Psychosomatic Medicine and Professor of Clinical Psychiatry and Pediatrics at Nationwide Children's Hospital and The Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio. She is founding chair and current co-chair of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Religion and Spirituality Committee, and Secretary-Treasurer of the American Psychiatric Association Caucus on Religion and Spirituality. Her academic interests are the psychiatric aspects of medically ill children, adolescents, and young adults; religion and spirituality in medicine and psychiatry; and bioethics. She also serves as Priest Associate at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Columbus, Ohio. E-mail: mary.dell@nationwidechildrens.org.

Beryl Dennis, MBA, MDiv. I am a Doctor of Ministry student at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington DC, in the Soul Care track. I am interested in researching issues at the intersection of Spiritual Care and Health Care, and I would like to attend the Summer Research Workshop to learn how to design research in this field and discuss possible themes for my doctoral dissertation. In addition to a Masters of Divinity, I hold an MBA in Management and Graduate Certificate in Healthcare Corporate Compliance. I am an ordained minister through the American Baptist Churches USA, and work as a paralegal in healthcare law. E-mail: berylidennis@hotmail.com.

Donald J. Ebel, Ph.D. I am currently an associate professor and the director of both the Aging Studies Program and the Chesley Center on Aging at Minnesota State University, Mankato. I received a PhD in Sociology from Duke University and a MA in Gerontology from the University of Southern California. My current research focus is upon the intersection of aging and spirituality, particularly relating to Gerotranscendence. I am most interested in understanding social conditions that enhance or restrict the Gerotranscendence process among older adults. I work primarily in qualitative methods but have training in ordinal and logistic regression as well as multi-level modeling. E-mail: donald.ebel@mnsu.edu.

R. Neil Farrar, M.Div, D.Min candidate. My background includes over ten years in the military as a combat aircrewman during the Cold War. I was ordained in 2004. My education includes: Master of Divinity: Chaplaincy; MA Pastoral Counseling; and I am currently working on a Graduate Certificate in Military Resilience. I started a DMin program in the fall of 2014. The title for my Project is, “The Role of Faith and Spirituality in Healing and Resilience-building for US Military Veterans Suffering from Moral Injury.” In 2013, I pioneered a faith based non-profit: Operation Resilient Hope (ORH). We work exclusively with veterans. My current research interest is to offer spiritual care and hope for veterans suffering with Moral Injury. E-mail: Neil@neilfarrar.org.

Chad Federwitz, MA. I am currently the Life Enrichment Director and Chaplain at Balfour Cherrywood Village a memory care community serving 52 adults with Alzheimer’s in Louisville, CO. I obtained my bachelor of arts in Philosophy from the University of Wisconsin – Stevens Point, Master of Arts in Religious Studies from Naropa University, and am currently working on a Master of Arts in Gerontology from the University of Northern Colorado -Greeley. I work with Naropa University in hosting chaplain interns in what chaplaincy can be in a memory care community. I am interested in what spiritual care looks like for older adults who have memory loss, and live in community settings. E-mail: cfederwitz@gmail.com.

Theresa Galan-Bruce, LMSW, MA (Theology). Licensed social worker holding Master degrees from the University of Texas at San Antonio, and Oblate School of Theology (OST), currently pursuing a Doctor of Ministry in Spirituality at OST. Practice experience comprised of working with the following groups; homeless, formerly incarcerated, and those with co-occurring mental health and substance abuse disorders. Research interests include exploring the relationship between spirituality and social work, the ethical aspect of incorporating spirituality in social work education, mindfulness based therapies as treatment modality, holistic interventions for at risk youth, and the ternary relationships between a persons’ God image, and their psychological and spiritual health. E-mail: tgalan-bruce@ost.edu.

James Grossman, MA. After a 20-plus year career in writing, marketing communications, and organizational development, I went back to school at St. Catherine University and earned an M.A. degree in Theology (concentration: spiritual direction; practicum: zen). For nearly 10-years now I have worked in hospice as a spiritual counselor and bereavement support provider. I am currently a student in the human and organizational development doctoral program at Fielding Graduate University. It is early in my doctoral program so I have not yet formulated a specific dissertation or research topic. My interest continues to be in the broad field of spirituality and health and it is from that arena that my dissertation and research will develop. E-mail: jmgrossman@email.fielding.edu.

Donna Hale, Ph.D. Donna Hale, ordained minister, serves as Community Chaplain. Her graduate degrees are from Michigan State University (Social Science and Criminal Justice). Donna’s Masters of Divinity is from Lancaster Theological Seminary. Her Chaplain Residency was at Milton S. Hershey Medical Center. She attended Columbia University’s Narrative Medicine workshop; and, is a Spiritual Director (Oasis Ministry Program). Donna is certified as facilitator for both SoulCollage, and Mandala Assessment Research Instrument (M.A.R.I.). Donna wants to conduct qualitative research examining how narrative medicine and healing art--as components of the patients’ spiritual assessment (e.g., FICA)--contributes to patients’ medical treatment protocols. E-mail: Donna@1stuccofcarlisle.org.

Pamela Hallmark, MA. I was an accountant for 20 years and changed my life direction in response to a spiritual calling to healthcare chaplaincy. I received my BA in Comparative Religion from University of Washington, and my MA in Chaplaincy and Pastoral Care from Seminary of the Southwest (SSW) in Austin, Texas, during which time my covert decades-long desire to engage in research ignited. During my final year at SSW, I took a Research Methods class to learn about the foundations of academic research. During the past two years, I have met regularly with Rev. Remington Johnson, MDiv., Manager of Chaplain Services at Heart Hospital of Austin and former conference attendee. Together, we have engaged in a comprehensive literature review in preparation for our own research endeavor. E-mail: phallmark1@gmail.com.

Patrick Hemming, M.D. Patrick is completing a General Internal Medicine fellowship at Johns Hopkins University and will be joining the faculty in the Duke Division of General Internal Medicine, practicing ambulatory medicine at the Duke Outpatient Clinic. He attended medical school at the University of Maryland and residency in Internal Medicine at Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center. He has completed the Johns Hopkins Faculty Development programs in Curriculum Development, where he helped design an interprofessional curriculum for medical residents and chaplain interns. He has a Masters Degree in Public Health from the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. E-mail: jhemmin3@jhmi.edu.

Melissa Heustess, BA, MSW. Melissa has a BA in sociology & social work from Elizabeth City State University (1997) and an MSW from East Carolina University in 2000. Her health care experience has evolved from working as a claims processor with UNC Health Systems, leaping head-long into home health and hospice, APS and renal social work, to eventually becoming an Area Agency on Aging Administrator for Region R Council of Government in North Carolina. Over the years she has focused on being a competent professional with sound morals who values the positive impact we strive for while working with patients and families. As a result, a desirable foundation has been created in helping patients improve their quality of life through education, administration, and social work. Melissa's present focus is on acknowledging spiritual needs of patients, and their quality of life and death through creating CEU courses and presenting at community education events. E-mail: mheustess@amitycarehospice.com.

David Holder, M.D. Dr. Holder is an adolescent medicine physician who hails from Brooklyn New York. Dr Holder has a long interest in health and resilience in at-risk youth. Following his undergraduate studies at City College in Harlem, David completed his medical training at Harvard Medical School and an MPH focusing on adolescent HIV prevention. Following training in internal medicine at Boston City Hospital, Dr Holder completed a fellowship in adolescent medicine at Children's Hospital Boston and there carried out the first quantitative study of adolescent spirituality and sexual activity. Dr Holder currently serves as Director of Adolescent Services and Community Outreach and Programs at East Carolina, where he interfaces with community and university-based stakeholders toward investigations and programs in rural American youth. E-mail: holderd@ecu.edu.

Joseph R. Holtman, Jr., M.D., Ph.D. Dr. Holtman is a Professor of Anesthesiology/Molecular Pharmacology and Therapeutics at Loyola University School of Medicine Chicago. His clinical responsibilities are as Medical Director of the Pain Service. He sees primarily chronic pain patients in the clinic. He is involved in the education of pain fellows as Director of the Pain

Fellowship program and also teaches medical students and residents. Research interests include the treatment of pain, in particular the management of cancer pain, and the associated end of life issues. He has been involved in both basic and clinical research studies. E-mail:

jholtman@lumc.edu.

Monica R. Jackson, Ph.D. student. I am a Howard University Counseling Psychology Ph.D. student, Graduate Student Research Assistant, and Directors of Health Promotion and Education summer intern with the Black Women's Health Imperative. Work experience includes ministry, Chicago Area Health and Medical Careers Program intern, Educational Consultant with school systems nationwide, staff development, parent education trainer, and advocate for students/individuals with special needs, disabilities, and at-risk, in education, social services, and behavioral and mental health fields. Training includes crisis counseling, Chaplaincy/Clinical Pastoral Education, and National Alliance on Mental Illness facilitator. Research interests include global health, mental health, religious/spirituality practices, coping strategies, preventions/interventions, psychotherapy, and integrative health care. E-mail:

monica.jackson1@bison.howard.edu.

Samuel Kennedy, MDiv. Samuel was ordained in the Anglican Church of North America in 2013 and currently serves in the Episcopal Diocese of South Carolina as assisting clergy at the Cathedral of St. Luke and St. Paul in Charleston. He also serves in the Pastoral Care Department of the Roper St. Francis Healthcare System as the chaplain to the palliative care home team. Samuel's undergraduate background is in Biology, and he is particularly interested in exploring the impact of chronic, unresolved shame on the human immune system, as well as developing evidence-based pastoral interventions targeting individuals' experiences of shame. E-mail: Samuel.Kennedy@RoperSaintFrancis.com.

Chris Lea. Chris is a sophomore at Duke this coming semester. Last semester, Chris worked in a Neuropsychology lab exploring Traumatic Brain Injury and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder in war veterans, and he would like to continue to explore different perspectives in various labs dealing with a variety of mental disorders. Also, as a Christian, Chris would like to incorporate religion into his passion for science, health, and medicine. Being in the Cognitive Neuroscience and Law Focus last semester opened his eyes to mental illnesses such as psychopathy that do not have 100% effective treatments. Often, he wonders if there is another way involving manipulating behavior as opposed to actual brain function/neural circuits. In a similar way to how he might deal with stress through prayer, is it possible for a psychopath to have a spiritual connection that helps him or her prevent themselves from doing the things they know are wrong but have no emotional connection to? This is just one example of the many areas of interest Chris has acquired insight into in just one short semester at Duke. E-mail:

chris.lea@duke.edu.

Sharon J. MacKinnon, RN, FNP. Sharon Joy MacKinnon is a family nurse practitioner and former faculty member of the School of Nursing at UNC Charlotte, as well as adjunct faculty in the graduate school of nursing at Queens University, Charlotte where she taught health care policy. She is a doctoral candidate in Health Services Research at UNC Charlotte; along with her dissertation chair she has published a seminal article on the years of potential life lost to induced abortion in North Carolina. Her research interest and dissertation focus is on the association of religion with the contraceptive behavior of a nationally representative sample of women who have abortions. E-mail: sjmackin@uncc.edu.

Saneta M. Maiko, Ph.D. Saneta is a Research Chaplain with Indiana University Health. He has a degree in theology (St. Paul's university-Kenya), a master's degree in pastoral psychology (Christian theological Seminary-Indianapolis), and a second master's degree in organizational Leadership and supervision (Purdue University-Fort Wayne campus), and a Ph.D. in missiology (Concordia Theological Seminary). While trained as a chaplain with 5 units of pastoral clinical education, Saneta is interested in studying chaplain effectiveness and impact on patient coping and recovery, and is planning a project that will examine patient and care-givers' attitudes towards chaplaincy and how much they perceive chaplains help. E-mail: smaiko@IUHealth.org.

Barbara L. Markow. I worked in New York as a Pennsylvania Licensed Psychologist, and as a North Carolina Licensed Psychological Associate. While at Cherry Hospital, I loved teaching medical students and taught for several years at local colleges. At a frequent rate, strangers ask me for directions. Current efforts are directed to a vision of a legacy of "written directions" to enhanced health outcomes. Interested in physician patient relationships and neuroscience, and have additional interests and knowledge in heuristic research. Life long study in mind-body-spirit medicine began at 13. Epigenetic influences to development came from farmers, soldiers, clergy, and physicians. E-mail: markowbhcc@yahoo.com.

Donald McCown, PhD, MAMS, MSS, LSW. I am an assistant professor in the public health department at West Chester University. I received my PhD from Tilburg University (Netherlands) in Social Science; Master of Applied Meditation Studies from Won Institute of Graduate Studies, and Master of Social Service from Bryn Mawr College Graduate School of Social Work and Social Research, and am a Licensed Social Worker in Pennsylvania. My area of expertise is mind-body medicine. I teach graduate and undergraduate courses in CAM, mindfulness, stress management, and mental health, and direct an undergraduate minor in contemplative studies. My central research interests surround clinical and educational uses of contemplative practices, with particular emphasis on their relational dimensions. I am currently interested in the tensions between secular and religious thought and language in the teaching of mindfulness-based interventions. E-mail: DMcCown@wcupa.edu.

Michele Lynn McGrady, Ph.D. Michele is an Assistant Professor in the Integrative Holistic Health and Wellness program at Western Michigan University. She has been with the program since 2004, teaching full time since 2009. Michele earned her B.A. in Social Policy from Michigan State University, M.A. in Counseling from Heidelberg College, and Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology from Western Michigan University. In addition, she earned a graduate certificate in Integrative Holistic Health and Wellness. Michele's research interests include: spiritual development, spiritual diversity (in particular with the LGBT community), spiritual self-care, and spirituality in the classroom. E-mail: michele.l.mcgrady@wmich.edu.

Inna Mogilevskaya, MSW, Ph.D. candidate. Inna received her Bachelor's of Arts in Psychology and in Religious Studies in 2001 from New York University (NYU). In 2003 she received her Master's in Social Work and in 2011 completed the Zelda Foster's Post Master's Certificate Program in Palliative and End of Life Care at the NYU School of Social Work. Currently, Inna is a doctoral student at the Stony Brook University, School of Social Welfare. She is interested in exploring oncology social workers' levels of incorporating aspects of spiritual matters into their psycho-social assessments, and their degree of experience in conducting spiritual assessments. E-mail: inna\_m@hotmail.com.

David Moran, MS, MDiv. Chaplain Moran was born in Koizumi Japan and raised as an Army Brat in a family that moved 23 times in 19 years following his father, an active duty Infantry Officer. After graduating from Heidelberg High School, Heidelberg Germany in 1974, David attended Wheaton College, Wheaton, IL and graduated in 1978 with a BA. In 1986, he earned his MDiv from Garrett Evangelical Theological Seminary, Evanston, IL. Since then, he has served on active duty as an US Army Chaplain and currently holds the rank of Colonel. Chaplain Moran also holds an MS in Community Counseling from Columbus State University, Columbus, GA, and a MS in Strategic Studies from the US Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, PA. He is an ordained Bishop in the Church of God (Cleveland, TN) and married to his College Sweetheart, Cindy (Neal) Moran of Charlottesville, VA who together are the parents of two adult children. E-mail: david.moran2@socom.mil.

Kimberly Murman, MDiv, MBA. As director of spiritual care for Banner Desert/Cardon Children's Medical Centers in Mesa, AZ since 2005, I am an ordained Presbyterian (USA) minister, a Board Certified Chaplain through APC and hold an MBA in Healthcare. As our department strives to become a chaplaincy care industry leader, we have instituted research literacy as a core part of the department by integrating of the APC Webinar Journal series led by George Fitchett. My research interests are primarily in the areas of addressing cultural needs, compassion resilience and the effect of addressing spiritual needs to increase self-esteem/value and worth. E-mail: Kimberly.Murman@bannerhealth.com.

Rev. Philip L. Oloingo, B.Div, M.A. Philip is a PhD student at the Great Lakes University in Kisumu, Kenya, a private Christian university. He is also an ordained church minister and associate pastor at Pioneer Community Church in Eldoret, Kenya. He is also the chief clinical officer at Moi University Health Services (a public university). His research focuses on spiritual care in palliative care at this university in the Tropical Institute of Community Health and Development. E-mail: pngoijine@gmail.com.

Kim Palmer, M.Div. After leaving a career in environmental engineering I earned a Master of Divinity then completed a chaplain residency at Emory University Hospital where I was subsequently retained as a PRN chaplain. In September I will begin a two-year fellowship as an oncology chaplain in a university research hospital in the southeast; the fellowship is to include clinical, research, and training components. My research interests have not yet come into focus although I have a deep interest in interfaith work and a curiosity about how chaplains can best provide spiritual care to those who may not view themselves as religious. E-mail: kpalmer01@gmail.com.

Camille Pincham-Jones. My background is in Public Health which included employment in City Public Health in Boston, Massachusetts. In addition I am currently serving several congregations on a consultancy basis as a Congregational Health Minister/Wellness Coordinator. I recently had the opportunity through a mission's trip to South Africa to work with a congregation in South Africa on creating a Health Ministry Program. My training includes undergraduate studies in Elementary Education and Psychology and a minor in Spanish which included a semester long Study Abroad experience in Spain. In addition, a Senior year group project resulted in a student run clinic called La Clinica Latina where we were honored to serve the migrant farm worker population which resulted in a published article on Consumer Health Services for Hispanics. My studies through The Boston Theological Institute Schools shaped my research interests in Congregational Health Ministry and the importance of this work in the Faith Community. E-mail: tendingthetemple@aol.com.

Katherine Ramos, MA, MEd. I am 5th year Counseling Psychology Doctoral candidate from the University of Houston completing my clinical internship at the Durham VA Medical Center. I have a Master's in Industrial Organizational Psychology in addition to a Master's in Education. My research and clinical work has a primary focus on Geropsychology and multicultural considerations related to aging issues. This month I will begin an advanced 2-year Geropsychology Research Postdoctoral Fellowship that includes examining adaptations to evidence based treatments to improve mental health service delivery and receptivity to mental health services among minority populations. Specifically, I am interested to address how the adaption of evidence-based treatments, that includes the incorporation of religion and spirituality (R/S), influence treatment outcomes above and beyond cognitive behavior therapy and treatment as usual. E-mail: kramos.uh@gmail.com.

Judith Maria Peña Santodomingo, M.Ed. I hold a bachelor's degree in educational psychology, and a master's degree in education with an emphasis in curriculum. Currently, I am a professor at the Universidad de San Buenaventura in Medellin, Colombia, and also a student in the doctorate program in psychology at this university. The research on which I am working is "the religious experience as a meaning framework for the suffering derived from boundary situations". This is a phenomenological and psychosocial study that tries to understand how, from their religious experience, the people give meaning to suffering caused by extreme situations; specifically, in our Latin-American context so affected by years of armed conflict. E-mail: judith.pena@usbmed.edu.co.

Wendell Scanterbury, M. Div. For the past eight years I have served as a chaplain at the Cancer Treatment Centers of America (CTCA) in Philadelphia, prior to which I pastored in Brooklyn, NY. I hold a Bachelor's degree in Pastoral Ministry and an M.Div. in Urban Mission. My current doctoral studies are in Marriage and Family Therapy at Eastern University. At CTCA, I have assisted Rev. Dr. Michael Barry and Dr. Loren Toussaint in research on forgiveness with patients and families with cancer. My research interest is in the intersection of faith and family interrelationships (emotional, psychosocial and spiritual dynamics) in the context of cancer diagnosis and treatment. E-mail: wscanter@eastern.edu.

Ch, Lt Col, Sarah A. Shirley, USAF. Sarah is a chaplain practitioner with background in healthcare, arts, community and military ministry. Her MDiv is from Claremont School of Theology; her MAS is in Military Operational Art and Science from Air University. Sarah's research interest is in the efficacy of spiritual and religious interventions for maintaining operational readiness, including personal resilience. She is a priest from the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, the Senior Air Chaplain for the Florida National Guard, a spiritual resilience consultant and values-based leadership coach/spiritual director, and currently serves as the U.S. Special Operations Command (USSOCOM) Chaplain's Liaison Officer to the Preservation of the Force and Family (POTFF) Task Force, and the USSOCOM POTFF Spiritual Domain Program Manager. E-mail: Sarah.Shirley@socom.mil.

Rev. Darcia L. Simpson, Ph.D. Darcia received her Master of Divinity Degree from Oral Roberts University Graduate School of Theology and Missions in 1997. She continued her theological education at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation in their Clinical Pastoral Education Program. Ordained in 2002 by the American Baptist Churches USA, she served as an associate minister in a local parish for thirteen years. Currently, a Spiritual Care Coordinator at Hospice of the Western Reserve, she recently earned a Ph.D. in Urban Education, with a specialization in Leadership and Lifelong learning from Cleveland State University. Her dissertation focused on aging adults. The findings exposed the centrality of spirituality and its inextricable link to meaning making in the Third Age. E-mail: DSimpson2@hospicewr.org.

Cheryl Sparks, PhD, LPC. I am early in my second career as a counselor and now faculty member in the Marriage and Family doctoral programs at Eastern University (I was a physical therapist previously). Though I do not practice "Christian Counseling," I do want to help clients and students use faith as a resource in their work and lives, and to address spirituality in an academic way, as well as addressing psychology in a spiritual way. I'm particularly interested in couples work (especially attachment theory) and the sequellae of trauma (which I also see through an attachment lens). Personally, integrating theology and a spiritual worldview with my psychological tools has been quite helpful. At Eastern, we have a very diverse student base (ethnically, racially, theologically, SES), so I'm very interested in incorporating diversity of views into research. E-mail: csparks@eastern.edu.

Nelly Sta. Maria, Ph.D. I have my BA in Psychology from Barnard College and my PhD in Clinical Psychology from St. John's University. I'm currently Assistant Chair of Psychology, Anthropology, and Sociology at Suffolk County Community College in New York. Before Suffolk, I taught psychology full-time at the University of Pittsburgh. I'm just beginning research in this field, but can say I'm interested in religion and spirituality, particularly in college students. To this end, I'm enrolling at Yale Divinity this Fall. Lastly, I'm surprised and happy to say I've found many Suffolk students who are willing to volunteer and learn about R/S research. Establishing a research program for these students is also a goal for the near future. E-mail: nelly.santamaria@yale.edu.

Edward H. Struebing, III. Background: Born (12/20/44) and schooled in North Tonawanda, NY thru grade 8. Ramsey H.S., NJ ('63) Tri-sport captain, Sr Class Pres. BA English ('67) Bucknell University. Played football; RA frosh dorm 64-67; school radio and newspaper sports editor. VISTA, Nashville, community development. Taught Jr and Sr HS English for 3 yrs. In automobile business (Tampa)'72-'75. Married Rachel RN in '75. Christ Seminary-Seminex '80; intern Jacksonville U in campus ministry; Student Body President '79-80. Pastored Grace, Jax, '80-83. Pastoring Peace, Port Charlotte '84-present. Trained in Victorious Ministry Through Christ '84 and have been deeply involved in healing ministry ever since. Wife Rachel (Health Advocate) and I developed weekly healing service and healing teams in the hospital. We have personally witnessed hundreds of healing miracles. Healing ministry is a large part of the House of Prayer ministry. I am completing research for my first book on healing. Pastor, Peace Lutheran Church and Charlotte County House of Prayer, 21500 Gibraltar Dr, Port Charlotte, FL 33952. E-mail: ehs3rda@yahoo.com.

Maribeth V. Swanson, LCSW. Ms. Swanson is the Social Services Secretary (Director) for The Salvation Army Central Territory, providing executive level oversight, coordination, direction and leadership for a range of social service programs that serve the most vulnerable throughout 11 Midwest's states. She has led the development and implementation of Pathway of Hope, an initiative for families with children who desire to take action to break the cycle of crisis and inter-generational poverty. Integration of spirituality throughout this holistic casework model is one of her core research interests and the focus of her dissertation. She has an ABD from Cardinal Stritch University, a M.S.W. from the University of Illinois-Chicago, and a B.A. from Asbury University. She is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker in the state of Illinois. E-mail: maribeth\_swanson@usc.salvationarmy.org.

Rev. Csaba Szilagyi, M.Div. Rev. Szilagyi serves as the bereavement services manager at VITAS Healthcare's hospice program in Palm Beach County, FL. He provides bereavement program management through strategic planning, coordination of services, staff training, and assisting the interdisciplinary teams with the delivery of spiritual, psychosocial, and bereavement care. He also worked as a hospice chaplain at VITAS. His previous clinical experiences included intensive, emergency, and neurological care, and interdisciplinary stroke and palliative care teams in hospital settings. He completed his M.Div. studies in Budapest, Hungary where he is from. He is an ordained minister of the Hungarian Reformed Church in America and an ACPE supervisory candidate. His research interests include measures of spiritual and psychological well-being in hospice and how these factors impact health and quality of life. He is interested in research on the integration of spiritual care in health services on an organizational level as well as incorporating research into CPE training. E-mail: Csaba.Szilagyi@vitas.com.

Tamara L. Taggart, MPH, PhD candidate. Tamara received her AB from Dartmouth College and MPH from Columbia University. A PhD Candidate at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (Health Behavior), her research focuses on religiosity, racial identity, sexual health behaviors, and life course. She has been awarded the CDC James A. Ferguson Emerging Infectious Disease Fellowship and the UNC Future Faculty Fellowship. Currently, Ms. Taggart is a UNC STD/HIV pre-doctoral fellow. Prior to joining UNC, she worked for seven years as a clinical research manager at Columbia University Medical Center. E-mail: ttaggart@email.unc.edu.

Kirk Vander Molen, M.Div, MSW, is from Grand Rapids, MI. Kirk is a third-year student in the Interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program in Health Sciences Program at Western Michigan University. The program prepares students to address complex problems and contribute to interdisciplinary evidence-based practice to improve health and human services in all areas of society. Kirk's research interest includes exploring factors to increase the effectiveness of faith-based class and mentoring programs to help people experiencing financial need cope with and improve their circumstances long-term. Some variables of interest are: self-efficacy, support systems, faith and emotion/problem focused coping. Vocationally, Kirk serves as National Director of Missional Integrity for Love In the Name of Christ. Love INC is a national movement of 140 affiliates focused on networking and mobilizing churches for community outreach. E-mail: kvanmolen@gmail.com.

Michael Walsh, M.D. I am mostly from the Denver area in Colorado. I am married and have a 1 year old daughter. I completed my undergraduate training in Biochemistry and Psychology at the University of Colorado at Boulder, and my medical school training at the University of Colorado at Denver. Currently, I am in Psychiatry residency training at the University of South Dakota. I am also pursuing a Master's Degree in Christian Spiritual Formation through Denver Seminary, and I will be finished with both Psychiatry residency and the Master's program in June 2016. My research interest is in the area of Christian spirituality and mental health. E-mail: michael.g.walsh@usd.edu.

Mark S. Winward, CDR, CHC, USN. Chaplain Winward received a B.A. from Gordon College in 1983 and was commissioned in the Navy. Following his initial active duty, he earned an MDiv from Virginia Theological Seminary and went on exchange to Cambridge University. In 1997, he was appointed co-chairman of the Committee on Science, Technology and Faith for TEC. In response to the 911 attacks – and after assisting in Pentagon recovery efforts – he returned to active duty. Chaplain Winward holds a Master of Theology in Ethics from Princeton Theological Seminary and completed both Air Command and Staff College and Joint and Combined Warfighting School. From 2007 to 2010, he served as Ethics Chairman and Assistant Professor at Joint Forces Staff College. He is currently the Deputy Chaplain for U.S. Special Operations Command and a DMin candidate at Gordon-Conwell. E-mail: Mark.Winward@socom.mil.