

2009 Duke Spirituality & Health Research Class (August)

Lourdes I. Morales Alejandro, Ph.D. Lourdes' educational background is in social work, and the doctoral degree is in education with concentration in administration and supervision of schools. His professional experience is in clinical social work, school and social agency administration, and professor in privates and public universities in Puerto Rico. Since 2003, has been an assistant professor at the Department of Social Work at the University of Puerto Rico in San Juan. His research interest is in spirituality in children and adolescents. He submitted a research proposal about this theme to the university and was approved for five years. The research will begin on August 2009. E-mail: lourdes.moralesalejandro@uprrp.edu.

Shiquina Andrews, M.S. Shiquina is a doctoral student at the University of Alabama at Birmingham in the Medical/Clinical Psychology program. She has participated in prior research in the area of coping and adjustment in medical populations. However, her principal research interest is investigating the role of religion/spirituality in mental and physical health. Her prior research in this area involved investigating God-centered locus of control and religious problem-solving style as predictors of attitudes toward psychological help-seeking. She is also interested in investigating relationships between spirituality and preventative health, health services utilization, and quality of life. E-mail: shiquina.andrews@gmail.com.

Jean Andriamananaivo, M.D. Jean is a psychiatrist who does part-time work in a hospital (Psychiatre des hopitaux) and part-time work in private practice, near Hyeres, France. He has particular interests in psychiatry and spirituality for many years, and has done research on depression in religious communities in the Rhone Alpes region of France. He has also created a reflection group about psychiatry and spirituality in Toulon, and organized numerous meetings on spirituality, forgiveness, suffering. Jean plans to conduct a survey about spirituality and suicide in an emergency ward of a general hospital, and intends to apply for a grant from the French government in January 2010. E-mail: drandria_cabpsy@yahoo.fr.

Dr. Alex E. Asakitikpi. Dr. Asakitikpi obtained his B.A and M.A degrees in Archaeology and Anthropology in the early 1990s from the University of Ibadan, Nigeria, and an M.Sc and Ph.D in Sociology from the same university. He was a staff in the Department of Archaeology and Anthropology of the University of Ibadan, where he taught Anthropology from 1996 to 2006. He is currently a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Sociology at Covenant University, Nigeria. His research interests include maternal and child health; the socio-cultural context of HIV/AIDS; the patient-doctor relationship; and health care policies in Africa. E-mail: alex.asak@yahoo.com.

Rev. Dr. Peter Barnes. Peter is an Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Human Sciences, Counseling and Spirituality Division, Saint Paul University, where he is a certified teaching supervisor in Clinical Pastoral Education as well as teaching courses in spiritual care theory and practice. He also shares the teaching of an inter-professional course with medical and nursing faculty at the University of Ottawa entitled "Death Made Visible," as well as participating in the preparation of research proposals in inter-professional learning. E-mail: barnes555@rogers.com.

Priscilla Barnes. Priscilla is a doctoral student in the Interdisciplinary Health Sciences Program at Western Michigan University (WMU). She earned her Bachelors of Science in Biology (1993) and Masters of Public Health in Community Health Education (1998) at Indiana University-Bloomington. Ms. Barnes has developed, implemented, and evaluated health initiatives for the U.S. Air Force, the National Association of County and City Health Officials, Calhoun County Public Health Department, and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Her research interests are in public health and faith community partnerships, public health systems and services research, and health disparities. E-mail: pabarnes14@yahoo.com.

Margaret L. Blackmon, DMin. Margaret, a native North Carolinian, received a bachelor of Arts degree in Chemistry from UNC-Chapel Hill and worked for 20 years as a pharmaceutical analytical chemist. She earned a Master of Divinity degree at Shaw Divinity School in Raleigh, North Carolina and a Doctor of Ministry degree at Hood Theological Seminary in Salisbury, North Carolina. Ordained by the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, she has served as pastor of eastern North Carolina congregations since 1993. She completed four units of CPE at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Her research interest is Christian pastoral care, spirituality and wholeness. E-mail: drpearlnoir@yahoo.com.

Saul Boyarsky, M.D., J.D. Dr. Boyarsky left Duke as Professor of Urology, Director of Rehabilitation and assistant professor of physiology after organizing the Urodynamics Research Society in 1970 to become Chairman of Genitourinary Surgery and Professor of Bioengineering at Washington University in St. Louis. Consultant to NIH, VA, FDA, drug and device industries. He practiced urology from 1958-63 in New York. In St. Louis he joined the Interfaith Breakfast Dialogue Group for 17 years, joined its Lifelong Learning Institute and retired to St. Louis University as clinical professor. Teaching Passions: medical theology, science and religion, comparative religion, academic integrity, intergenerational peer learning. E-mail: saulboyarsky@gmail.com.

Dorine Brand, BS, MPH. Dorine is a full-time doctoral student in Community Health at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has a bachelor of science in Community Health and a master of public health from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign and Chicago campuses respectively. Her research focuses on the role of the African American church as a change agent for health. Dorine has served as project managers for NIH grants focusing on health disparities within the African American community and a university wellness center director. Her plans are to develop behavior strategies utilizing faith-based institutes within the African American population to decrease health disparities. E-mail: dbrand5@illinois.edu

Kevin R. Byrd, Ph.D. Dr. Byrd was full Professor at the University of Nebraska at Kearney, where he taught from 1990 - 2003. His research focus has been on the correspondence between measures of religiousness and subjective well-being/mental health. He moved to Athens, Ohio in 2003 and subsequently took up private practice there for 5 years. This last year he served as interim Director for the Psychology and Social Work Clinic at Ohio University. He is interested in obtaining external support for research in translating spirituality and health research into practice with clergy and health professionals. E-mail: byrdk@ohio.edu.

Elizabeth (Beth) Carr AP, MS. Beth is a Board Certified Acupuncture Physician in private practice in Naples, FL. She specializes in Japanese acupuncture, Colorpuncture and injection therapy. Most of her patients have chronic pain, systemic illnesses or undiagnosable diseases. Her diagnostic tools include Konstantine Korotkov's Kirlian camera. Elizabeth has volunteered for 9 years with the MS Home Wellness Program. In 2006 The Peter Mandel Foundation for Esoteric Medicine awarded her for her 5 year research on the efficacy of Colorpuncture for MS symptoms. She studies Colorpuncture in the US, Germany and Switzerland and teaches Colorpuncture classes in the US. E-mail: light2enlight@aol.com.

Jane Casey, MD. I am a Consultant Psychiatrist, specialising in Old Age Psychiatry, employed for the last 6 years at the Auckland District Health Board, as a specialist in the Mental Health Service for Older People. I worked in Canterbury Hospitals in New Zealand for 10 years prior to this, as a Consultant Psychiatrist and Psychogeriatrician and Senior Psychogeriatric Registrar. I worked for 4 years as the Senior Lecturer in old age psychiatry for the University of Otago. I obtained my MBChB from the University of Auckland in 1986; I am Fellow of the Royal Australian and New Zealand College of Psychiatrists (FRANZCP) since 1993 and a Member of the Faculty of Psychiatry of Old Age from 1999. In my time under the mentorship of Professor Peter Joyce at the Christchurch Medical School my primary role was the designer and coordinator of a post-graduate diploma in the psychology and psychiatry of the elderly and the coordinator of the then new curriculum for 4th year medical students. I also published in personality disorder in the elderly and depression in the elderly during that period. My goals in attending this workshop are to broaden my knowledge, rejuvenate my research interests, and develop the tools to incorporate spiritual assessment and understanding into clinical practice. jcasey@adhb.govt.nz.

Margaret Chandlee, PhD, MS, is a Research Assistant at the Office for the Study of Aging in the Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the University of South Carolina, Arnold School of Public Health. Her research interests include aging, social determinants of health, and the relationship between faith, health and quality of life among older adults. Currently, she is working on the project, Understanding Social and Personal Aspects of Faith and Practice Related to Health, which is supported by Duke University and the John Templeton Foundation. She is planning on developing a survey instrument for her dissertation using findings from this project. E-mail: chandlmj@mailbox.sc.edu.

Kimberly S. Clay, Ph.D., M.P.H., M.S.W., is an Assistant Professor at the University of Georgia, School of Social Work. Her program of research is comprised of two complementary lines of work: (1) the assessment of cancer-related quality of life and survival disparities among older adults from racially/ethnically diverse populations, and (2) implementation and evaluation of spiritually-based behavioral interventions to improve cancer outcomes, survivorship, and symptom control for the aging. Dr. Clay has authored several articles examining spirituality and quality of life outcomes in cancer survivors, and has made several professional presentations on her research. Her publications appear in Cancer Control, Health Services Research and International Journal of Older People Nursing. E-mail: ksclay@uga.edu.

Preston Allen Collier, Jr., Ph.D. Preston earned his Ph.D. in Health Services Management from LaSalle University in LA. He earned his BA and MBA from Marshall University in WV. He is currently working toward a Ph.D. in Pastoral Ministry through Trinity Theological Seminary in Newburgh, IN. Preston is employed as a Cardiovascular Representative with Merck/Schering-Plough Pharmaceuticals and a member of the American College of Cardiology. He is an Authorized Lay Pastor and Ordained Elder with the Presbyterian Church, USA. He also serves as a Chaplain for the International Order of St. Luke the Physician. Preston is a member of the Board of Advisors and an Adjunct Professor for Marshall Community and Technical College. E-mail: pac4587@aol.com.

Michael De La Cruz. Michael is Principal Investigator at Ben Franklin Esoteric Labs. He studied Theoretical Biology, Physics, and Engineering Management at WPI. His investigatory work for the last 10 years is in the new area of the anatomy and physiology of the soul, shared soul/body organs, and, trauma psychology; most recently, foundation principles and methods for investigation, modeling and prediction. His work experience spans spiritual healing, architecture and historic building renovation, early Apple Mac computer R & D, early electric robot use in the US, alternative theories of tissue growth and evolution. He has published engineering R & D, and, computer modeling and simulation conference papers. He holds patents related to early personal computer development. E-mail: Mike@FranklinBlock.com

Gregory K. Ellis, MDiv, BCC. Greg serves as Administrative Director for Pastoral Care at Florida Hospital in Orlando, FL. An ordained minister in the Seventh-day Adventist church, Greg has served for 10 years in church ministry and 14 years in chaplaincy ministry. He holds a Master of Divinity degree from Andrews University, and is a Board Certified Chaplain with the Association of Professional Chaplains. He and his wife, Jeanine, a registered nurse, have a son, Tyler, who is 19. E-mail: Greg.Ellis@flhosp.org.

James E. Florence, DrPH, MPH, CHES. Dr. Florence is Associate Professor and Interim Chair of the Department of Community Health at East Tennessee State University's College of Public Health in Johnson City, Tennessee. He teaches a variety of community and public health courses and conducts research in rural and community health intervention effectiveness, along with community-based participatory research in areas of targeted need and interest to local communities. His doctoral dissertation, examining health status and practices of ministers, began in him a long-standing interest in the relationship between spirituality and health. E-mail: FLORENCE@mail.etsu.edu.

Daniel F. Gallego, M.D. Dr. Gallego was born in Colombia, South America, where he obtained a medical degree from the University of Antioquia. After a clerkship in medical anthropology and psychiatry at Harvard Medical School in 2004, he worked at the Liberian Refugee Camp Clinic in Ghana for four and a half years, where he provided primary care to the refugee community and coordinated public health and research activities including a nutrition program. His main area of interest is integrative medicine, in particular the understanding and creation of strategies for the intersection between public health and spirituality/religion. He is currently a member of the Critical Medical Anthropology Research Group, affiliated with the Center for Social Studies at the National University, Colombia. E-mail: danielfgallego@yahoo.es.

Blake A. Gibson. Blake is pursuing a B.S. in Biomedical Science (University Honors Scholar) and a B.A. in Spanish Language, Literature, and Culture from Colorado State University. His background includes continued work as a Promotor for the Migrant Worker Council of Montana and as a research assistant under Dr. Douglas Ishii Ph.D, exploring the link between Alzheimers disease/dementia and diabetes. His research interests include the intersection between faith and medicine in our healthcare delivery system. He is currently working to start a regional dialogue with health care providers, ministers and lawmakers on this subject. His future plans are to apply to medical school. E-mail: bgibson@rams.colostate.edu.

Rosanne B. Hanratty. Rosanne has a Master in Science in Public Health and has done graduate work in sociology and theology. She has extensive experience in ministry to elders and people with disabilities in a number of settings. Currently she is enrolled in a Master's program in Religious Studies and is the Pastoral Care Coordinator at a for-profit nursing home in Ellicott City, Md. Her research interests are spirituality and aging, specifically spirituality and dementia. E-mail: owendog1@comcast.net.

Elahe Hessamfar. I have a B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering from University of Kansas, a M.S. degree in Computer Science from George Washington University, and a M.A. degree in Biblical Studies from Reformed Theological Seminary. In my last position I was the Senior Vice President and Chief Technology Officer for Dun & Bradstreet Corporation, with responsibility for strategy formulation and management of all Information Systems and technology infrastructure around the globe. Dun & Bradstreet is the provider of the largest and most prominent Business Information Databases globally. I stopped working in 2000, in order to care for my daughter, when she was hit with mental illness as a result of a religious experience. I am interested to pursue a Ph.D. research focusing on the relationship of mental illness and religious experiences. E-mail: elahe@hessamfar.com.

David K. Hormenoo, Ph.D. David is currently a CPE Supervisor at the Duke University Medical Center in Durham, NC. He is an ordained Baptist minister from Ghana, West Africa affiliated with the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship. He earned his Master of Divinity with Biblical Languages (MDivBL), Master of Arts in Religious Education (MARE) and a Doctoral degree in Pastoral Care and Counseling (PhD) from the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. He completed two years of CPE Residency at the Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas and worked as a Staff Chaplain for three years before going into CPE Supervisory Training at the Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas. He is a certified CPE Supervisor with the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education, Inc. His interests are in cultural, multi-cultural, and cross-cultural pastoral education and pastoral research and writing. E-mail: david.hormenoo@duke.edu.

Marilyn Hawke, BS, MA, MBA. Marilyn obtained a BS in biology from the University of Santa Clara, a masters in the History of Science & Medicine from the University of Chicago, and an MBA from San Jose State University. She has been working in marketing at three high tech corporations - Apple, Oracle, and Sun Microsystems, launching new products and programs, and deploying change management. Currently, she is a consultant in Six Sigma quality methodology. Marilyn is interested in gaining a better understanding of the connection between science and spirituality, medicine and research over the last 200 years. She is expanding her knowledge of the evidence and metrics for role of spirituality in health. E-mail: marilynmc99@yahoo.com.

Monica Y Jones, MS. Monica is a Counseling Psychology Doctoral Candidate at Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU) with research interests including religiosity/spirituality, health behaviors, and community programming. She is employed by a community mental health center, VABODE, conducting psychological testing with children, adolescents, and adults, in addition to performing out-patient individual and family therapy. She works with the Baptist General Convention of Virginia as the Assistant Program Evaluator for the SPICES health education program which focuses on religious communities in Central Virginia. She is also an adjunct faculty member in the psychology department of John Tyler Community College. E-mail: myjones@vcu.edu.

Solomon Kendagor, M.Div., Ph.D. Dr. Kendagor is a chaplain at Barnes-Jewish Hospital in St. Louis. He teaches one course at Washington University School of Medicine on Major Traditional Religion, introduction to the role of religion and faith in the practice of medicine. He is also a part time City Director for International Students, Inc., meeting spiritual needs of International Students and Scholars. He is a graduate of University of Pretoria (Ph. D in Practical Theology), Covenant Theological Seminary (Th. M.), Columbia International University (M. Div) and University of Missouri-St. Louis (Ed. M. in Counseling). Interest: research tools on spirituality, theology and medicine. E-mail: skk6720@bjc.org.

Carol McAninch-Pritz, D.Min. I am the Manager for Clinical Pastoral Education at The Methodist Hospital in Houston, Texas where I have served since September, 2008. I am a Certified Supervisor with the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education. Before joining the Methodist staff, I was a Chaplain Educator at Banner Good Samaritan Medical Center, Phoenix, AZ. I am an ordained minister with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). I became interested in research while working on my D.Min at New York Theological Seminary. My demonstration project involved educating hospital staff about the importance of the spiritual needs of patients as a way to improve their use of the Spiritual Care Department in the care plans for patients. E-mail: CMcaninchPritz@tmhs.org.

Thomas J. McCaffrey, MBA. Mr. McCaffrey has had an extensive business career, spanning over a 35 years time frame. During that period, he served as a Partner in the strategic management consulting firm, McKinsey and Company, an investment banker at Merrill Lynch, and a senior executive at Chase Bank and the Exelon Corporation. Following that experience, he ran a horse ranch in Sisters Oregon for three years. Currently, he has embarked upon a new career, and is pursuing a Doctoral degree in Clinical Psychology. Over the years, he has been active in a number of a number of not-for-profit organizations, primarily in areas dealing with the environment, inner city youth, and substance abuse. He is interested in the intersection between spirituality and psychology, most particularly as it relates to the use of spiritual belief systems in the therapeutic process. He is a graduate of Yale University and the Harvard Business School, and currently resides in Chicago, Illinois. E-mail: tjmccaffrey3@comcast.net.

James McGee, BCC, LCSW. I am a board certified chaplain, licensed clinical social worker, and a folk musician who integrates spirituality, psychological therapy, and expressive music to foster therapeutic/spiritual development for all ages at Our Lady of Peace, a psychiatric hospital in Louisville, KY. My research interest is in documenting what adolescents find helpful in the combined approach of therapeutic songwriting and pastoral counseling. I also want to measure unique outcomes I observe in therapeutic worship services at the hospital. I am an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church USA. My education includes a M.Div., MSW, and a MA in Folklore from UNC Chapel Hill. E-mail: James.McGee@jhsmh.org.

Jocelyn S. McGee, MSG, PhD. Dr. McGee is the Coordinator for the Home Based Primary Care (HBPC) Mental Health Initiative through the Office of Mental Health Services, Psychotherapy and Psychogeriatrics Section, VA Central Office. She is an Assistant Professor at the University of Mississippi Medical Center, Department of Psychiatry and Human Behavior. Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology was attained at Fuller Theological Seminary (2002). Predoctoral Internship was completed at the Palo Alto VA. Postdoctoral Fellowships were received in Clinical Neuropsychology (Baylor College of Medicine) and in Geriatric Research (Palo Alto VA/Stanford University Aging Treatment Studies Program). Additionally, an M.S. in Gerontology was attained at the Institute of Gerontological Studies-Baylor University (1995). Current research includes: (1) a pilot project aimed at developing a cognitive-behaviorally oriented telephone-based intervention, for family members of persons with COPD, who reside in rural or geographically isolated areas; and (2) the development of a spiritually based model of care for older adults residing in long-term care settings. E-mail: Jocelyn.McGee@va.gov.

Denise A. Miner-Williams, RN, PhD, CHPN. Dr Miner-Williams is a geriatrics research fellow with South Texas Veterans Healthcare System, and has completed a Palliative Care post-doctoral fellowship with the same institution. As a retired Army Nurse Corps officer she has a wealth of experience in multiple clinical and administrative arenas. Her current clinical work is in palliative care, in which she is board certified in hospice and palliative nursing, and working with family caregivers. Her research focus is on a confluence of the issues of family caregivers, spirituality in relationships, and stress management. She lives in San Antonio, is married, and has three children. E-mail: MINERWILLI@uthscsa.edu.

Valerie U. Oji, Pharm.D., BCPP. Dr. Oji is Assistant Professor, Department of Clinical & Administrative Pharmacy Sciences, Howard University College of Pharmacy, Nursing, & Allied Health Sciences in Washington, D.C. She is a registered pharmacist (United States and overseas) with 22 years professional experience. She is a board certified Psychiatric/Neurologic Pharmacist with post-doctoral residency training in psychiatric pharmacy practice from University of Texas Health Science Center, San Antonio. She has graduate training in Biblical Framework Counseling from the College of Biblical Studies, Houston, Texas. She is a founding member of the College of Psychiatric and Neurologic Pharmacists (CPNP). E-mail: voji@Howard.edu.

Amy D. Owen, Ph.D.. Amy earned her Ph.D. in Educational Psychology and a second MS in Counseling from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. For the past ten years, she has studied forgiveness, as a therapeutic intervention, its impact, and its concept and process in various cultures. She values interdisciplinary perspectives and has experience in quantitative and qualitative methodologies. As 2009-2010 Post-Doctoral Fellow for the Center for Theology, Spirituality, and Health, Dr. Owen looks forward to exploring the influence of forgiveness on immune system functioning, meditation, what occurs in the body during spiritual experiences, and the role of religious communities in health E-mail: amydownen@mac.com.

Lucy Pierre M.Div. Lucy received her B.S. degree in business from Southern University in New Orleans and a Master of Divinity from Gammon Theological Seminary of I.T.C., Atlanta, Georgia. She was the first African American female to be ordained in the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church and has served in several churches as Senior Pastor, Christian educator-consultant, curriculum writer for the Abingdon Press Publishers, as well as a writer for the Civil Air Patrol Moral Leadership: Cadets and Instructor's Manual (United States Air Force). She received training in Clinical Pastoral Care (CPE) and is presently serving as clinical Staff Chaplain at the Philadelphia VA Medical Center for the last 18 years. Her national memberships include the Military Chaplain's Association, the National Black Chaplains Association of Veterans Affairs, Member of the Civil Air Patrol, Squadron #103. E-mail: Lucy.Pierre@va.gov.

Holly Pope PhD, MSPH is a Research Associate at the Office for the Study of Aging in the Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the University of South Carolina, Arnold School of Public Health. Her research interests include the relationship between faith and health and quality of life among older adults, as well as qualitative research methods. Currently, she is a Co-Investigator and Project Manager for Understanding Social and Personal Aspects of Faith and Practice Related to Health, a project supported by Duke University and the John Templeton Foundation. E-mail: hpope@mailbox.sc.edu.

Mgr. Miriam Prášilová. I am the Lutheran pastor of Evangelic Lutheran Church of Augsburg confession in Slovakia. Prior to 2006, I ministered as the hospital chaplain at University Hospital in Bratislava; since then I've worked at the National Oncology Institute, and serve as supervisor for volunteers at the internal medicine department of St. Elisabeth Oncology hospital. I am also now a PhD student of social work at St. Elisabeth University College of Health and Social work in Slovakia. My research interest is to learn how to managing a research project and presenting it. I want to learn how to use the tools for measuring spiritual needs and applying findings to clinical practice. E-mail: miriam.prasilova@gmail.com.

Catherine Racine, MA. Catherine, with an MA in Counseling Psychology, is a Canadian feminist counselor and writer working in community mental health. Her clinical practice is informed by depth and Buddhist psychologies and her interest in spirituality and health. She has published on mystical experience in Women and Therapy, and in 2008 published a memoir in the Journal of the Association for Research on Mothering on the spiritual connection she shared with her mother in the final months of her life. She plans to continue her education towards a PhD. Research interests include mystical and religious experience, Buddhism, story-telling, and grief and loss. E-mail: cracine@telus.net.

Priscilla Ramirez. Priscilla is currently a doctoral student at St. Mary's University, San Antonio, Texas. She holds a Masters degree in Community Counseling from St. Mary's University and is working towards obtaining her license as a professional counselor. Priscilla currently works as a counselor in geriatrics at a rehabilitation center and also at a local church working with families and adolescents. Priscilla volunteers her time as a Spiritual Director in many youth and young adult retreats. She has volunteered in the development of the Universidad Evangelica Nicaraguense & Escuela de Postgrado en Teologia y Consejeria Profesional in Caracas, Venezuela (a dual Masters degree program in Theology and Counseling). Priscilla research interest is in learning how to measure spirituality and applying it to different populations and demographics. E-mail: priscilla93@juno.com.

SoonHee Roh. SoonHee is a Ph.D candidate of Silver School of Social Work at New York University and works a psychiatric social worker at Elmhurst hospital center. Her both MSW are from Hunter College of City University of New York and SoongSil University in Korea. Also, she holds M.Div degree from Alliance Theological Seminary at Nyack of New York. She taught social work introduction, casework, social work research and child welfare as an adjunct professor in Korea. Currently, she is a Hartford doctoral fellow and working on her dissertation. Her dissertation title is the impact of religion, spirituality, and social support on depression and life satisfaction among Korean immigrant older adults. E-mail: sr940@nyu.edu.

Jayaprakash (JP) Sabbithi, chaplain Pacific Health Ministries, Hawaii. JP has been a chaplain in various clinical settings for twenty one years. Originally from India, now lives in Hawaii with his wife and two children. JP earned his Doctorate in Pastoral Counseling from the Lutheran School of Theology and did his clinical residency both in Chicago. Ordained in Lutheran Church, a board certified chaplain, JP works for the Pacific Health Ministry, coordinating Spiritual Care Ministry at the Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Honolulu. JP has been a keen observer of how people's life styles are linked to their belief system and how it influences their attitudes as they face suffering in their lives. E-mail: chaplainjp@hotmail.com.

Stephen Nezezon, M.D. After attending Catholic University of America and the University of Wisconsin in Physics, I became involved in Eastern spirituality first with M.M. Yogi of TM and later at the Himalayan Institute founded by Swami Rama. There I met Dr. Rudolph Ballentine, an integrative psychiatrist combining the best of East and West in his work. He inspired me to go to medical school and become a psychiatrist. I am board certified in general and addiction psychiatry. I have done research on the non-drug treatment of hypertension and written on the use of breath work in psychiatry. I now am the Chief of Psychiatry and Clinical Director of a psychiatric hospital in a state prison in Pennsylvania. I would like to integrate some Eastern approaches into my work there and research their effects in hopes of sharing the results with other prison psychiatrists, e.g., meditation and hatha yoga for self-awareness and self-control. E-mail: snezezon@hughes.net.

Brant. VanOrman, Ph.D. Dr. VanOrman completed his Doctor of Psychology degree at Wheaton College in Wheaton Illinois. For the last 10 years, he has served as a staff psychologist at Pine Rest and, for the last two, as Training Director for Pine Rest's pre-doctoral psychology internship. This internship provides generalist training for clinical and counseling psychologists, with specialized training in the assessment of spirituality and, when appropriate, utilization of spirituality in treatment. Current research interests include determining optimal ways to assess and utilize spirituality in treatment across a spectrum of service (ie. inpatient, residential, and outpatient)--and training future clinicians in doing the same. E-mail: Brant.VanOrman@PineRest.org.

Eric Y. Yang, PhD. Dr. Liu received his Ph.D. in sociology in April 2009. His research interests include comparative sociology, religion, health, crime/deviance, Asian ethnicity, communist societies, and social science research methods. His article entitled "Beyond the West: Religiosity and the Sense of Mastery in Modern Taiwan" will be published by the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion soon. Currently, Dr. Liu has been working on several projects examining the links between religious involvement and psychological well-being in Taiwan and mainland China. Beginning in Fall 2009, he will work as a John-Templeton post-doc fellow for the Institute for Studies of Religion at Baylor University. E-mail: Eric_Liu@baylor.edu.